My poem: Jax

If I rode a cow
 I could explore the peaceful countryside.
 We could sit under a shady tree
 and look up at the dreamy clouds.
 I could also jump over rusty fences
 and swim in a calming pond.
 I could go on top of rolling hills
 and ride down mountains.
 I could ride on fresh grass
 in a field of flowers.

Lifelong Learner

Learning extends beyond formal schooling and university. Lifelong learners are continually acquiring new skills to grow personally and professionally. It can be incidental or deliberate but learning never stops!

Benji...how do I describe him? Ape-like skinny-armed boy should I say? A hurricane? An animal? All of these words describe him perfectly but that's not all Benji has to him. Benji is my tall, thin 3 year old brother with a cheeky grin. He has a chipped front tooth from the time he thought the floor was a swimming pool and dove right in. A scar on his eyebrow from when he put his head in the sound proof extra thick wall. His track pants are normally grass stained with rocks in his pockets from all the "adventures" he goes on.

He is a chocolate covered bundle of joy that makes everyone smile and laugh whenever he walks in the room. He seems really cute and fun at first... But at the end of the day he is a...NIGHTMARE! Imagine the loudest sound in the world. Times that by 10. Add in a few screeching dying or drowning cats. If you hear that sound don't worry it's just Benji having a tantrum. My neighbours must think our house is haunted and we are running and screaming for our lives every night.

But let me tell you one thing that not a lot of people know about. When it comes to Benji's bed time, he makes me read him books. So I get in his bed and he cuddles into me as I read and looks up at me with his big... poo brown eyes and says " I love you sis."

Cammy is a kelpie cross dingo with a VERY unique personality. Especially since she's a dingo so you can imagine how crazy, jumpy and excited she would get if she sees a new person. But she is such a sook so whenever she is about to be in trouble she always lets out this cute whine and this adorable face; which is irresistible.

Cammy has this gorgeous beige colored fur which I'm pretty sure comes from the escences of the dingo in her. But she might be cute and cuddly on the outside but she has a WICKED bite. She has these deep brown eyes and when you stare into them you drown in her cuteness.
